RECTOR'S WIDOW JAILED AS SLAYER

By GRAPHIC Staff Correspondent

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 29.—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall is in a cell in the Somerset County Jail in Somerville today, held without bail on a charge of murdering her husband, the Rev. Edward H. Hall, and his pretty choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, four years ago.

Protests Her Innocence

The elderly wife of one of the principals in the most sensational murder case of the generation vigorously protests her innocence.

"I will make those who caused my arrest suffer as I have been made to suffer," she said as she was led to her cell.

She was prevented from making a further statement by police and state troopers, who surrounded her.

The square-faced, gray-haired woman, motherly in appearance and cultured, is being held for the grand jury.

Troopers Guard Home

State troopers guard her home here, the spacious residence a clergyman with a wealthy wife was able to maintain. Inside are only Mrs. Hall's brother,
